On Campus

To our retirees for 1994-95:

WKU says 'Thank You'

At a special dinner in Downing University Center on May 22, WKU's 1994-95 retirees were honored for their years of service to the University. Here they are, beginning their new lives as emeriti faculty-staff:

Richards, Athletics. Row 3: James Combs, Facilities Management; Jack Corn, Journalism; William Traugott, Ed. Leadership; William Duncan, Bookstore; Wilma Adcock, University Libraries. Row 4: Tony Glisson (not retiring!) Director, Human Resources, dinner host; Catherine Ward, English; Larry Pearl, Public Safety; Irene Powers, Nursing; Frances Perdue, English; Patricia Pearson, Biology; Betty Seitz, Sponsored Programs. Row 5: President Thomas C. Meredith (not retiring!) special speaker; Howard Newton, Ky. Museum and Library;

Raymond Pryor, Facilities Management; Martha Ragland, Facilities Management; James Koper, Teacher Education; Joan Panchyshyn, Ticket Office; Nancy Davis, English; Karen Pelz, English; and Elizabeth Borders, Facilities Management. The University values the continued support and assistance of those who have retired from teaching, research, administrative and staff positions by giving them benefits which include a university identification card, library privileges, a free parking permit, continued faculty-staff rates on tickets, a scholarship plan, and membership eligibility to campus facilities. Faculty also are eligible to apply for research grants, be allocated office space when it is available, may attend meetings of the Faculty Senate and Academic Council, may participate in academic processions, be appointed to represent the University at academic ceremonies at other universities, may take part in all ceremonial functions of the University, and are eligible to have their names included in faculty lists in University bulletins.

Looking for good students

By Bob Skipper

The Western Kentucky University Board of Regents at its April quarterly meeting approved a new graduate fellowship program that the University hopes will attract high-quality out-of-state graduate students.

The fellowship, which will be equal to the out-of-state portion of registration fees, will be available to students in graduate programs deemed prominent by Western XXI, Western's strategic plan. Those programs include education, folk studies, psychology, coal chemistry and recombinant genetics. The master of professional accountancy will also be included.

Students will also have to meet an academic requirement based on undergraduate grade-point average and score on the Graduate Record Examination.

"We hope to attract higher quality graduate students without a large burden on the budget," said Dr. Robert Haynes, vice president for Academic Affairs. Haynes said Western has not been able to provide enough financial support to compete with other institutions for high-quality out-of-state students.

Graduate students from Kentucky currently pay $1,030 per semester in registration fees while non-residents pay $2,870.

Because of the high standards and restricted number of programs involved, Dr. Haynes said he did not expect a large number of students to qualify to the fellowship. And because these will be students who probably would not have attended Western without the fellowship, no drain on the budget is expected, he said.

WKU President Thomas C. Meredith said he thinks the pilot program "will bring in some stars" to these programs.

In other business, the Board directed the University administration to draft a resolution expressing concern about Western's forced participation in Kentucky's health insurance program.

Best estimates show that participation in the state program, which is mandated by the General Assembly, could cost the University an additional $800,000 for first half of 1996, Dr. Meredith said.

And because the state cannot provide firm information about the cost or quality of the coverage, Dr. Meredith said Western is having a hard time finalizing a budget.

The University's Budget Committee is already wrestling with tight funding. While state appropriations will be up $1.8 million for 1995-96 over the previous year, state funding is still more than $1.2 million less than in 1991-92.

Dr. Meredith said the University is trying to hold increases in fixed costs, which usually run $3 million, to $1.6 million and is still trying to come up with a way to provide a 5 percent pool for salary increases, which would cost an additional $2.8 million.

The Board also approved hiring the W.F. Corroon advisory firm of St. Louis to assist Western in the development and implementation of a new classification and compensation plan. The current plan was developed in the 1970s. The contract, which must be approved by the Legislative Research Commission, is not to exceed $35,000.

Retirees

Facilities Management under contract

By Bob Skipper

At a special meeting May 26, the University Board of Regents approved a management contract for the University's Facilities Management program.

The contract with Marriott Management Service Corp. will provide for the management of Western's physical plant operation; however all assets and most employees will remain with Western, according to WKU President Thomas C. Meredith.

"This is not privatizing the Facilities Management operations; Marriott will provide management, expertise and systems for operating campus facilities," Dr. Meredith said.

Marriott will provide a director of Facilities Management, who will report to Western's contract administrator. Marriott will also provide five supporting managers who will report to the director. All other Facilities Management employees will remain Western Kentucky University employees and retain all retirement and vacation benefits.

The only current Facilities Management positions affected by the contract will be six managers. Their positions are guaranteed for six months and the managers may be offered positions with Marriott at the company's discretion.

Dr. Meredith said each Facility Management employee will receive a memo from the Board of Regents explaining the changes and meetings between the employees, administration and Marriott will be scheduled before the end of next week.

Board Chairman Earl Fischer of Owensboro said the decision, which came after a more than two-hour closed session, was not easy.

"Any decision like this in an emotional one," Fischer said. "We are interested in all the employees affected by this decision."

Regent C.C. Howard Gray of Lexington called the contract "a positive move for Western and the individuals involved."

Dr. Meredith said the five-year contract should mean increased efficiency, implementation of effective management systems and training opportunities for Facilities Management employees.

Paying the 'Price' for her efforts

It came as no surprise that Dr. Jimmie O. Price was chosen to receive this year's Women's Alliance Award for Outstanding Contributions to Women.

Letters in support of her nomination came from both on and off campus, because the 20-year veteran of WKU's faculty, a professor in the Department of Public Health and Director of WKU's Women's Studies Program, has dedicated her service to both the campus community and to Bowling Green, the region and state.

Here are just a few reasons why, taken verbatim from one of her letters of nomination:

"She has been a member of Western's Gerontology Committee for more than 10 years and currently is working with Dr. Lois Layne and Dr. John O'Connor to establish a class in Women and Aging.

"She has served on the Advisory Council of the WKU Adult Day Health Care Center since 1991.

"Recently, she wrote the course proposal and effected the acceptance of the Women's Health Class, HE 464, which she uses as a forum for educating our students about current health issues for women, issues which have only in the past few years even been considered by most of the medical community.

"As Director of Women's Studies, she has worked to make the program more inclusive and to obtain firm University support for what, until Jimmie's term as Director, has existed with a University budget of a mere $3,200.

"Dr. Price has given dozens of presentations to local organizations on issues of importance to women. For example, Health problems of Rural Women, Teenage Pregnancy, The Role of the Caregiver (a role which usually falls to women), Ethical Issues in Nursing, to name just a few. She also has served on the Board of Directors of BRASS, the local spouse abuse center, and was instrumental in establishing and implementing the Bowling Green Hospice Program.

"Jimmie also has served on the Board of Directors of the Kentucky Association for Gerontology, the Program Planning Committee for Kentucky Citizens for Quality Long-Term Care, and the Governor's Regional Task Force on Drugs. While none of these state boards deals with gender specific issues, all these issues have a serious impact upon the lives of women."

And finally, from a nominator who knows the path well: "One aspect of Jimmie's efforts as a women's advocate that is of special interest to me is her consistent, even persistent refusal to allow the University to treat the work of women University faculty and staff as volunteer efforts that do not have the same status as the work of male faculty and staff. She has waged an almost daily battle to obtain gender equity at the University."

Another nominator seconded by writing:

"As Director of the Women's Studies Program at Western, Jimmie has helped to focus the attention of the administration upon the total population of women - students, faculty and staff.

"Prior to becoming the director, Jimmie had such a strong reputation as a teacher and scholar and in her public service work that right from the start as Director of Women's Studies, the members of the administration have listened to and addressed her concerns.

"Jimmie is perceived as a person who can get the job done," this nominator wrote.

"Whether it is in the area of locating space for the program, calling attention to the outstanding and dedicated faculty and courses of the program or helping to show the excellent critical thinking skills of the students in the program, Jimmie has been hard at work. She has learned in a very short time how to 'cut the red tape'...Jimmie also is a master at getting others to work with and to support the Women's Studies Program."

And one more wrote: "Individuals of Dr. Price's caliber are rare."

WKU's Rutledge to head private foundation

R.M. "Bob" Rutledge III, Vice President for Institutional Advancement and Executive Director of the WKU Foundation, will become president of the Mose & Garrison Siskin Memorial Foundation in Chattanooga, Tenn. July 10.

In a June 7 news release announcing Rutledge's resignation, WKU President Thomas C. Meredith said: "Bob Rutledge has provided this institution with a solid beginning in our private fund raising efforts. He will be missed."

The Siskin Foundation provides educational, habilitative, rehabilitative and support services to children, adults and families of persons with disabilities. The Foundation creates an awareness and understanding of the needs and rights of persons with disabilities while developing and implementing programs to prevent disabling conditions.

"It is with mixed feelings that I leave Western, but as a professional opportunity, I could not ignore this challenge," said Rutledge. "Western and the WKU Foundation are poised to continue to move forward and ensure private support for the University's academic programs."

Rutledge came to WKU in 1993 after serving as president and executive director of the Texas A & M University Development Foundation.

Last month he was elected president of the Society of Institutionally Related Foundations (SIRF), a nationwide networking organization dedicated to providing continuing education for foundation executives and employees.

He was elected at the group's annual joint meeting of SIRF, Council for the Advancement and Support of Education and the Association of Governing Boards.

About You includes professional activities such as presentations, awards, and elections to office in professional organizations.

Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences

ENGLISH

Dr. Lee Spears read The Business Communications of Registered Nurses at the Midwest Conference for the Association for Business Communication April 21.

MUSIC

Dr. Michael J. Kallstrom received the premiere performance of his composition for horn and electronic tape, Eastern Brilliance, at the annual Forum of the Southeastern Composers League at the University of Florida in March. He also was installed as the new President of the Southeastern Composers League. In April, his Scenes, for bass voice and marimba were performed at Jefferson County Community College by the composer and Dr. Christopher Norton for the Kentucky Music Teachers Association Composers Concert in Louisville.

PHILOSOPHY AND RELIGION

Dr. Cassandra Pinnick presented Prospects for an Epistemology of Technology Assessment at the VIII Biennial meeting of The Society for Philosophy and Technology at Hofstra University in Hempstead, N.Y. this month. The paper argues that the 20-year case study history of the Office of Technology Assessment in Washington, D.C. provides the basis of a theory of technology assessment.

SOCIOLOGY AND ANTHROPOLOGY

James W. Grimm discussed papers in the Evaluation Research Session of the Southern Sociological Society meeting in Atlanta, Ga. in April.

Business Administration

ECONOMICS

Dr. Stephen Lile presented (co-authored by Dr. Brian Goff) The American Tobacco Trust and Evidence of Monopsony Power at the 20th annual meeting of the Economic and Business Historical Society in April in Boulder, Col.

Education and Behavioral Sciences

CONSUMER AND FAMILY SCIENCES

Dr. Marilyn Casto presented Living in the Past: Colonial Revival Interiors at the American Culture Association meeting in Philadelphia in April.

Dr. Carl Hall, head of the department, was named Leader of the Year by the Kentucky Association of Consumer and Family Sciences at its annual meeting in March in Lexington, Ky.

Dr. Martha Jenkins was honored as Home Economist of the Year by the Association of Consumer and Family Sciences at its annual meeting in March.

Dr. Joyce Rasdall was awarded the Wiley-Berger Award for Outstanding Service at the annual meeting of the Association of Consumer and Family Sciences.

Regent Fred Mudge is Honored

Western Kentucky University Regent Fred Mudge has been inducted into the Academy of Distinguished Alumni of Mechanical Engineering and Mechanics of West Virginia University.

Mudge is a 1956 WVU graduate with a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering.

He has been a member of Western's governing board since 1992, and he recently retired as president and chief executive officer of Logan Aluminum.

After graduating from WVU, the native of Wheeling, W.Va., served an extended tour of military duty in Germany as an officer with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and taught in the Reserve Officers Training Corps program at Murray State University.

Mudge then joined the Anaconda Company at the Louisville rolling mill as an engineer trainee, and progressed through various operating responsibilities, including plant management duties in New Jersey and Louisville.

He became vice president of technology for Arco Metals where he was responsible for research, engineering and major capital programs and was responsible for the construction of the Logan Aluminum plant, assuming the positions of president and CEO in 1985. The $800 million facility has been expanded under his leadership and has 1,000 employees. It is recognized as the premier aluminum fabricating facility in the U.S.

Mudge is also a registered professional engineer in Kentucky and has been active in the community. He is a past president of the Logan County Chamber of Commerce, chairman of the Board of Trustees of Logan Memorial Hospital and was named Citizen of the Year for 1989 in Russellville.

Mudge was one of three inductees. Charles E. Jamison, project leader in the Fibers and Film group of Hoechst Celanese, was inducted into the Mechanical Engineering and Mechanics Academy. Dr. Thomas A. Csencsitz, an orthopaedic surgeon, was inducted into the Academy of Distinguished Alumni of Aerospace Engineering.

Previous inductees include NASA astronaut Jon A. McBride, NASA Space Shuttle program director Leonard S. Nicholson and Massachusetts Institute of Technology President Charles M. Vest.

GEOGRAPHY AND GEOLOGY

In April:

Dr. James L. Davis and Dr. Nancy H. Davis, (English) presented Geographic Elements in a Regional Novel at the national meeting of the Popular Culture/American Culture Associations in Philadelphia.

Dr. Albert Petersen presented Mennonite Migration in Allen County, Ky. at the national meeting of the Popular/Culture Association.

Dr. Elizabeth McClellan presented Folding and Foliation Development in the Stei-Langsaetra Bhear Zone, South Central Norwegian Caledonides at the southeastern section meeting of the Geological Society of America in Knoxville.

Dr. Chris Groves and J. Meiman presented The Hawkins River Groundwater Monitoring Site, Mammoth Cave, Ky. at the southeastern section meeting of the Geological Society of America. Dr. Groves presented Hydrology of the Central Kentucky Karst at the Green River Basin Watershed Management Conference in Bowling Green.

PUBLIC HEALTH

Dr. Henry Baughman has been selected by the Emergency Medical Services Branch of the Cabinet for Human Resources to teach a new emergency medical technician curriculum to current instructors.

University Libraries

LIBRARY PUBLIC SERVICES

The Third District Library Media Association has named its association scholarship in honor of Evelyn Thurman.

This past spring, Thurman made many presentations on the Ingalls/Wilder families and storytelling, and she was invited as a library consultant for Asbury College's new planned library.

LIBRARY SPECIAL COLLECTIONS

Donna Parker presented Ho for Drakes Creek: Something Ventured, Nothing Gained at the South Union Seminar in South Union, Ky. April 29.

About understanding one another

Western Kentucky University President Thomas C. Meredith was one of three college and university presidents from Kentucky who participated earlier this month in the BellSouth Foundation Roundtable for Southern Institutions of Higher Education.

The roundtable, which was held in Atlanta, is designed to promote discussions that can lead to a better understanding of issues confronting institutions of higher learning in the South. The discussions also led to a five-year plan for the BellSouth Foundation's grant-making program in education, according to Leslie J. Graitcer, BellSouth Foundation executive director.

Sessions were facilitated by Robert Zemsky and Ursula Wagener of the Pew Higher Education Roundtable.

Other issues addressed include changes in students and education in general over the past 10 to 20 years; the rising cost of education, and the changes likely to take place over the next 20 years.

Dr. Meredith was joined by Joseph J. McGowan Jr., president of Bellarmine College, and Mary L. Smith, president of Kentucky State University, as well as higher education representatives from Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee.
